

AUGUSTA STUNNED BY GREATEST FIRE

Thousands of Homeless in Churches and Schools—One Death.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 23.—Augusta was prostrate today under the most disastrous conflagration in its history. Much of the business district and a large area of the finest residential section were a smoking mass of ruins. At least one life was lost.

The damage wrought is still speculative. Estimates run anywhere from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Thousands of Augustans are homeless. Churches, schools, and temporary shelters are housing them.

Fire companies rushed here by special train from Atlanta, Macon, and Savannah last night are still on duty. Hospitals are crowded with injured. Merchandise from stores and household goods, piled in the streets, are guarded by the local militia.

The worst devastation wrought by the flames, which started late yesterday afternoon in the big Dyer office building, was in the very heart of the business district.

Among the principal buildings destroyed were the Western Union, Dyer, Empire Life, Postal Telegraph, Commercial Club, and Masonic Temple. Several churches and schools were destroyed, but most of their contents are believed to have been saved.

Ruins were searched today for victims of the fire. Dozens of persons were injured by falling walls and flying debris. A high wind swept the flames up Broad street, the principal business thoroughfare.

Reports that several persons had turned to death in office buildings were not confirmed today.

A general call for relief funds was made today. Thousands of dollars already have been voluntarily subscribed.

Students Will Debate Investigation Problem

George Washington University has selected a debating team to meet Catholic University on the night of April 23 in a contest on the subject, "Resolved, That immigration should be further restricted by the imposition of a literacy test."

The team will be composed of Gad B. Morehouse, Law '15; J. G. Carter, Law '15, and Frank Fuller, Law '15, with H. W. Cornell, Law '16, as alternate.

The team was selected from a group of eighteen candidates, the largest number that ever completed at a tryout at the university.

Mr. Morehouse is the most experienced debater at the university, having appeared in numerous contests during the past few years. Mr. Carter represented George Washington in its recent debate with Pittsburgh University. Mr. Fuller has had two years' experience in debating at a university in the West.

The team was selected by a board of judges composed of Prof. J. L. Park, E. Otto Schreier, and William C. Van Vleet. A. L. Hodgkins acted as time-keeper.

Kit Carson Post, G. A. R., Observes Anniversary

The forty-ninth anniversary of the organization of Kit Carson Post, No. 2, G. A. R., was celebrated last night with a banquet at the Oxford Hotel. The members of Duane Post, of Baltimore, were the guests of honor. Miss Elizabeth Maxfield, Miss Lillian Chenoweth, W. E. Braithwaite, Joseph K. Schofield, and Miss Ethel Garrett Johnson, accompanist.

George H. Slaybaugh, senior vice commander-in-chief, A. J. Hinton, commander of the Department of the Potomac; James E. Vansant, senior vice commander of the Department of Maryland; Commander C. M. Smith, of Baltimore; Commander John W. Bunker, of Washington; and Miss Rose Elizabeth Buckles made brief addresses.

Prefers Bloody Poland To Indians in America

CHICAGO, March 23.—The uncivilized life of America is more than Mrs. Stephanie Marie De Lenie Young Harting, of Warsaw, Russia, thinks she can get used to.

Those terrible Indians and bandits and wild animals would make her a nervous wreck, she declared. She would much rather stay in quiet Russia, where there are only bomb-throwing nihilists and a war.

And her husband, August Gustave Mathew Harting, who used to be a Russian baron and who came to the United States in 1907, has given up his nine-year career in the order of cards in a shuffled pack after they had been once read through to him.

To Tell of Berol Plan For Training Memory

A free demonstration of the Berol system for training the memory will be conducted at the Central Building of the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock tonight by Henry J. Sutton, of New York.

The demonstrator is at present conducting classes in the system at the Y. M. C. A. He was a pupil of William Berol, inventor of the system, and is now carrying on the latter's work.

A striking instance of the efficiency of the system is the case of a New York schoolboy, who recently in a demonstration called off the order of cards in a shuffled pack after they had been once read through to him.

Germans Pour Troops Upon Dvinsk Front

PETROGRAD, March 23.—General von Hindenburg has established headquarters at Vilna and has taken personal charge of the defense of the Dvinsk front.

For the past three days German reinforcements have been pouring into Vilna from the south and west and civilian traffic has been stopped.

Several Austrian reinforcements have arrived on the Dvinsk sector, the Germans evidently not wishing to withdraw troops from the western front.

Prisoners of war are captured night and day in strengthening the German defenses.

Chained, But Escapes.

FRENCH, S. D., March 23.—Leaving his prisoner, Zach Guthrie, undressed, handcuffed, and chained to the bed and apparently asleep, Joseph Mahoney, city marshal, departed from the hotel where the two were staying to ring the curfew.

When he returned Guthrie had gone, wearing all his clothes and leaving the handcuffs. Guthrie was apprehended when he tried to cross the Missouri river at Chamberlain on a ferryboat. He was brought from Vienna to Fresno for trial for taking jewelry from a store.

Frank Moran Began as Fighter By Teaching Roosevelts to Box

FRANK MORAN, second from the left, when he was a real tar with his chums on President's yacht, the Mayflower, at navy yard.

Challenger for World's Title Is Former Member of Crew of the Mayflower.

Frank Moran, contestant for the heavyweight championship of the United States, was one of the crew of the President's yacht Mayflower but a few years ago.

Moran is well remembered by all of the old-timers on the Mayflower, and he will be carrying their well wishes and most of their money, when he steps into the ring to meet Jess Willard.

Every visitor to the ship these days is asked what he thinks about the big fight. If he should happen to think that Willard will win, it is far better left unsaid.

From "Red" Moran, the bully boy of the Mayflower crew, to Frank Moran, contestant for the championship of the earth in "boxing," has been a comparatively short step for the genial Irish lad who endeared himself to his shipmates.

Moran's ambition for boxing supremacy was first stirred they declare by the admiration he won from the Roosevelt boys, whom he taught the many art, when their father was in the White House. Whenever the President's family took a cruise, and they frequently did so, the boys were sure to find Moran, who never failed to show them a few points.

Pride of the Eleven.

In addition to this, Moran was the pride and boast of the Mayflower football team in the seasons of 1904 and 1907. He was the leader in all athletic sports on the Mayflower, and frequently was ringleader and promoter. He organized boat races, and various athletic teams that the men of the Mayflower might show their skill and strength.

Master-at-Arms E. Lerit, of the Mayflower, who was Moran's chum, declared today that he was one of the finest men that ever stepped aboard ship.

"I shined with him in New York," Lerit said, "and we made our first cruise together. Frank was then but a boy. We cruised in New York, and made our training trip on the Pacific together. They separated us after our training trip. Frank came direct to the Mayflower, and when I finally berthed here, he was gone."

J. J. Waters, chief electrician who has been with the Mayflower for years, was one of the men who served with Moran. "We knew him as 'Red' Moran," said Waters, "and there never was a finer lad. He was but a boy when he came to us, but not a man on the ship but would swear by him. He was one of the finest all-round athletes that we have ever had. He could do anything and did do. He was our athletic promoter and one of the best football players on the team."

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Challenger for World's Title Is Former Member of Crew of the Mayflower.

Frank Moran, contestant for the heavyweight championship of the United States, was one of the crew of the President's yacht Mayflower but a few years ago.

Moran is well remembered by all of the old-timers on the Mayflower, and he will be carrying their well wishes and most of their money, when he steps into the ring to meet Jess Willard.

Every visitor to the ship these days is asked what he thinks about the big fight. If he should happen to think that Willard will win, it is far better left unsaid.

From "Red" Moran, the bully boy of the Mayflower crew, to Frank Moran, contestant for the championship of the earth in "boxing," has been a comparatively short step for the genial Irish lad who endeared himself to his shipmates.

Moran's ambition for boxing supremacy was first stirred they declare by the admiration he won from the Roosevelt boys, whom he taught the many art, when their father was in the White House. Whenever the President's family took a cruise, and they frequently did so, the boys were sure to find Moran, who never failed to show them a few points.

Pride of the Eleven.

In addition to this, Moran was the pride and boast of the Mayflower football team in the seasons of 1904 and 1907. He was the leader in all athletic sports on the Mayflower, and frequently was ringleader and promoter. He organized boat races, and various athletic teams that the men of the Mayflower might show their skill and strength.

Master-at-Arms E. Lerit, of the Mayflower, who was Moran's chum, declared today that he was one of the finest men that ever stepped aboard ship.

"I shined with him in New York," Lerit said, "and we made our first cruise together. Frank was then but a boy. We cruised in New York, and made our training trip on the Pacific together. They separated us after our training trip. Frank came direct to the Mayflower, and when I finally berthed here, he was gone."

J. J. Waters, chief electrician who has been with the Mayflower for years, was one of the men who served with Moran. "We knew him as 'Red' Moran," said Waters, "and there never was a finer lad. He was but a boy when he came to us, but not a man on the ship but would swear by him. He was one of the finest all-round athletes that we have ever had. He could do anything and did do. He was our athletic promoter and one of the best football players on the team."

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Master-at-Arms Lerit, Moran's chum, is going to try to represent the Mayflower crew at the fight. There is not a man aboard ship who is not confident that Moran will win. He has the strength, he has the skill, and he has the heart, they say. This latter expression means much to them. It embodies grit, staying power, ability to stand up under punishment and adversity, and ability to come back.

Test of Popularity.

H. H. Hines, chief yeoman, followed Moran to the Mayflower. "When I came aboard," he said, "every man talked of Moran. In the navy that is the surest sign of certain popularity. When you come to a ship, and the men talk of you, who has gone, they like him. The man who does not carry well wishes is not spoken of. When I came to the ship, the men mourned Moran for his personality and his general skill in athletics."

Navy Yard Workers Will Heavily Back Opponent of Jess Willard Saturday.

at the same time, Moran, it seems, was as big a favorite with the Mayflower crew as he was among the crowd. That Moran is thinking, too, of his shipmates on the Mayflower, and elsewhere in the navy, and that he holds them in high regard is indicated by the following story from his training quarters in New York:

John Nicol, U. S. S. G. 4, was an honored guest at Frank Moran's camp yesterday.

"Nick" came up from the sea, to see the "kid" who used to be the life of the President's yacht, Mayflower. Moran discovered his old shipmate jammed up against the gym wall in the rear of one of the largest crowds that has seen him work during the last few weeks.

"Hi, shipmate," yelled Nicol as Moran made his way to the center of the crowd for the daily grind.

"Nick," yelled Moran, "UP anchor, mate, and close close."

"Nick" made his seaman's way over the heads and shoulders of the assembled land-lubbers and was given a chair right up close. At the U. S. boat man's elbow sat Mrs. McKenna, of St. Mary's Church, Westchester.

"Nick," we're all climbing a bit," said Nolan as he cast a sailor's eye over the Isabella on Nicol's right sleeve.

The spread eagle, the cross, guns, three chevrons, the floating torpedo, and the bursting shell," mused Moran, as he took in the embroidered designs on the seaman's sleeve.

"A seaman's gunner, torpedoed and a first-class gunner's mate, Nick, I'm well well into a navyman's life. When I look at you, I think of the other day to see you, but you'd gone ashore on liberty."

"You're the spirit of the navy follows you to your grave," he said, as he turned to the crowd crowded about his sparring space.

"I only wish that all Americans were forced to meet the wonders that crowd well well into a navyman's life. When I retire as an undefeated champion of the world to become President of the United States I'll bend my efforts to do that for the navy as they do in other countries."

Brings Out the Good.

"How it does separate the chaff from the wheat! It brings out the good and kills off the bad. A B.A.D. had man can't hold his head above water in the navy."

Moran turned around then and flitted about in front of big Frank Kenell. Moran was constantly cautioned about his hands by Major Domo Hawkins, but now, but a handful of all hitters in his day, Willie Lewis was away and Hawkins became overzealous.

"Look at the kid said the admiring Nick; "he's a fine feller. Gee! It seems like yesterday that I saw him standing by, opening the back door for Mrs. Roosevelt and Prince and Princess when they came to see the Mayflower. He was the naughtiest among us, but he wasn't a mother's boy by any means. Didn't he used to set the dingy down on his back and end by whipping the daylight out of Red Nolan the terror of the ship."

"He was a big, shaggy fellow, and the kid here used to make him out. Nolan had a set of false teeth and he'd retire under fire, claiming that young Moran was bending his teeth. We all admired his stunt. He'd sit on the edge of his bunk and tell me by the hour that he'd some day be heavyweight champion of the world."

Brings Out the Good.

"How it does separate the chaff from the wheat! It brings out the good and kills off the bad. A B.A.D. had man can't hold his head above water in the navy."

Moran turned around then and flitted about in front of big Frank Kenell. Moran was constantly cautioned about his hands by Major Domo Hawkins, but now, but a handful of all hitters in his day, Willie Lewis was away and Hawkins became overzealous.

"Look at the kid said the admiring Nick; "he's a fine feller. Gee! It seems like yesterday that I saw him standing by, opening the back door for Mrs. Roosevelt and Prince and Princess when they came to see the Mayflower. He was the naughtiest among us, but he wasn't a mother's boy by any means. Didn't he used to set the dingy down on his back and end by whipping the daylight out of Red Nolan the terror of the ship."

"He was a big, shaggy fellow, and the kid here used to make him out. Nolan had a set of false teeth and he'd retire under fire, claiming that young Moran was bending his teeth. We all admired his stunt. He'd sit on the edge of his bunk and tell me by the hour that he'd some day be heavyweight champion of the world."

Brings Out the Good.

"How it does separate the chaff from the wheat! It brings out the good and kills off the bad. A B.A.D. had man can't hold his head above water in the navy."

Moran turned around then and flitted about in front of big Frank Kenell. Moran was constantly cautioned about his hands by Major Domo Hawkins, but now, but a handful of all hitters in his day, Willie Lewis was away and Hawkins became overzealous.

"Look at the kid said the admiring Nick; "he's a fine feller. Gee! It seems like yesterday that I saw him standing by, opening the back door for Mrs. Roosevelt and Prince and Princess when they came to see the Mayflower. He was the naughtiest among us, but he wasn't a mother's boy by any means. Didn't he used to set the dingy down on his back and end by whipping the daylight out of Red Nolan the terror of the ship."

"He was a big, shaggy fellow, and the kid here used to make him out. Nolan had a set of false teeth and he'd retire under fire, claiming that young Moran was bending his teeth. We all admired his stunt. He'd sit on the edge of his bunk and tell me by the hour that he'd some day be heavyweight champion of the world."

Brings Out the Good.

"How it does separate the chaff from the wheat! It brings out the good and kills off the bad. A B.A.D. had man can't hold his head above water in the navy."

Moran turned around then and flitted about in front of big Frank Kenell. Moran was constantly cautioned about his hands by Major Domo Hawkins, but now, but a handful of all hitters in his day, Willie Lewis was away and Hawkins became overzealous.

"Look at the kid said the admiring Nick; "he's a fine feller. Gee! It seems like yesterday that I saw him standing by, opening the back door for Mrs. Roosevelt and Prince and Princess when they came to see the Mayflower. He was the naughtiest among us, but he wasn't a mother's boy by any means. Didn't he used to set the dingy down on his back and end by whipping the daylight out of Red Nolan the terror of the ship."

"He was a big, shaggy fellow, and the kid here used to make him out. Nolan had a set of false teeth and he'd retire under fire, claiming that young Moran was bending his teeth. We all admired his stunt. He'd sit on the edge of his bunk and tell me by the hour that he'd some day be heavyweight champion of the world."

Brings Out the Good.

"How it does separate the chaff from the wheat! It brings out the good and kills off the bad. A B.A.D. had man can't hold his head above water in the navy."

EMERGENCY LIGHTS FOR SAFETY AT SEA

Invention of Department of Commerce Expert Provides Auxiliary Circuit.